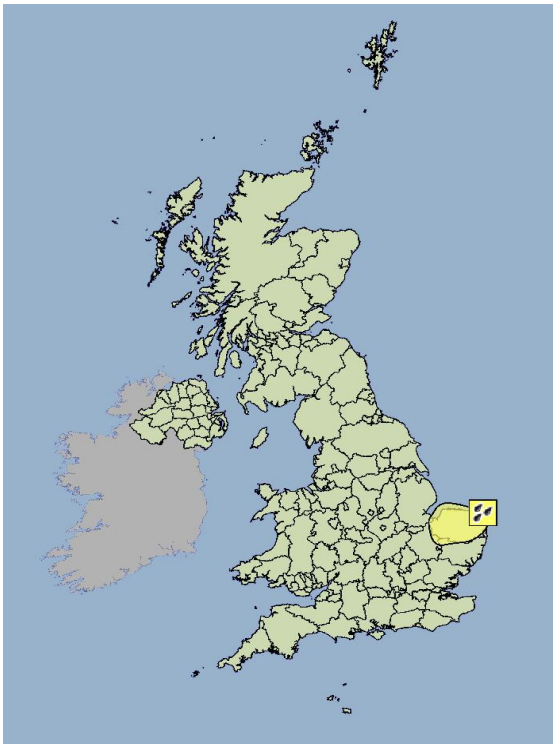
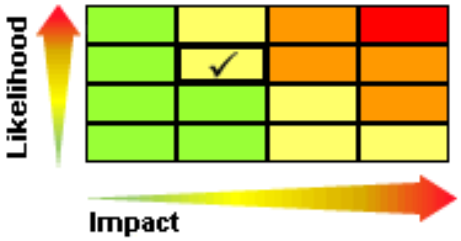
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Last night's heavy rain is expected to continue this morning before clearing from the west during this afternoon. A further 10 to 15 mm of rain is expected widely with perhaps 20 mm very locally. With 25 mm or more having already fallen, this additional rainfall is likely to result in some surface water flooding which may lead to longer journey times. Some sleet and wet snow is possible in the south and west of the warning area but is not expected to settle or result in any impacts.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 11:00 on Wed, 27th Dec 2017 until 15:00 on Wed, 27th Dec 2017

Rain, occasionally heavy, is expected to continue into this afternoon.

Bus and train services will probably be affected whilst spray and flooding on roads will also make journey times longer. Flooding of a few homes or individual properties is possible.
